Students

All: The three snow bears went for a stroll. While they were gone Aloo-ki went inside their igloo.

Teacher: Aloo-ki tasted Papa Bear's soup.

Students: This soup is too hot!

Teacher: Aloo-ki tasted Mama Bear's soup.

Students: This soup is too cold!

Teacher: Aloo-ki tasted Baby Bear's soup.

Students: Mmmmmm! Not too hot and not too cold.

Teacher: In the next room Aloo-ki spotted three pairs of beautiful boots standing in a row. She put on the biggest boots.

Students: These boots are too big!

Teacher: She put on the middle-sized boots.

Students: These boots are too fancy!

Teacher: She put on the littlest pair.

Students: These boots are just right!

Teacher: Aloo-ki walked into the last room and found a long sleeping bench piled high with fur covers. Heat from an oil lamp warmed her cheeks and made her sleepy. Time for a nap, she thought.

Teacher: She crawled under the highest mound of covers.

Students: This bed is too lumpy!

Teacher: She tried the middle bed with the furry fringe cover.

Students: This bed is too soft!

Teacher: She rolled over into the smallest sleeping place.

Students: This bed is just right!

Teacher: Aloo-ki fell asleep before she could take her boots off. The bears came home from their walk.

Teacher: Papa Bear said, "Someone has been tasting my soup!"

Students: Who could it be?

Teacher: Mama Bear said, "Someone has been sipping my soup!"

Students: Who could it be?

Teacher: Baby Bear said, "Someone found my soup and they ate it all up!"

Students: Oh, no! Oh, no!

Teacher: The bears ran into the next room and saw their boots in the middle of the floor. Papa Bear said, "Someone has been trying on my boots!"

Students: Who could it be?

Teacher: Mama Bear said, "Someone has had my boots on and the fur is all bunched up!"

Students: Who could it be?

Teacher: Baby Bear said, "Someone has taken my boots and left behind these not so good ones!"

Students: Oh, no! Oh, no!

Teacher: The bears ran into their bedroom. Papa Bear said, "Somebody had been sleeping in my bed!"

Students: Who could it be?

Teacher: Mama Bear said, "Someone has been sleeping in my bed too!"

Students: Who could it be?

Teacher: Baby Bear said, "Someone has been sleeping in my bed, and here she is!"

Students: Oh, no! Oh, no!

Teacher: Aloo-ki heard all the noise and jumped out of bed. She saw the bears and ran away.
